Mr. and Mrs. Reese Lewis are occupying their apartment, one of the Palmer-Marble houses, keeping this at Morris and Bedford streets.

AT THE OPERA

EVENING gowns seem to faithfully follow the general trend, indicated months ago by the Parisian couturiers before the advent of the war, and the general silhouette followed is that of extreme scantiness above, with the pendulum swinging to the other extreme below the waist-line. Indeed, every one with any pretensions at all to a neck, and sad to relate many with none at all, has adopted the shoulder strap effect in bodices. Slim little debutantes present an extremely ethereal appearance with their filmy draperies of tulle or net floating out behind them as they promenade behind the boxes on the tier.

Miss Elsa Reath, the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Reath, was noticed in the orchestra seats, wearing a stunning frock of dark blue chiffon and satin over white. The rather high V-shaped bodice was outlined at the neck with rhinestones, and was made with long, unlined sleeves of the chiffon.

The lower part of the gown was fashioned in an extremely wide girde of blue satin, and the full overskirt was made of tulle and was very fluffy. The drop skirt was of satin, and rather narrow.

Mrs. Walter Jeffords was in her box this week. She had selected a smart gown of black satin and velvet, which enhanced her fair coloring. The bodice was held in place over the shoulders with narrow straps of jet. It was fashioned of velvet and was made very wide, over a full skirt of tulle.

Miss Margaret Berwind, another debutante, is wearing an exquisite frock of white satin and net. The skirt is made of net, quite full over a foundation of satin which is edged with silk fringe. The bodice is also of net, and a girde curiously draped completes the costume. A charmingly French dancing frock is being worn by Miss Margaret Seull. It is of rose pink net over satin, and is set off by a wide girde of new blue. Tiny blue rosetted clasp shoulder straps are used as a finish on the skirt.

Mrs. Gardner Cassatt is wearing an attractive gown of flesh-colored tulle. It is made with the basque effect and a wide short circular skirt. Miss Susan Ingersoll appeared recently in a frock of flesh-colored satin, set off by deeper pink.

FRANKFORD

Mrs. William Carrell will entertain at dinner, followed by auction bridge, at her home in Rhawn street this evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William Davis, of 204 South 15th street.

Fall foliage and chrysanthemums will be arranged in the halls and living room and the dining room will be decorated with hanging baskets filled with pink roses and maiden-hair ferns.

Mrs. Gallagher, of 206 Rhawn street, is entertaining Mrs. Anna O'Connor, of Leacona, N. H.; Mrs. Henry Garant, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and John Breen, of Providence, R. I. They will leave Philadelphia this evening.

The Pinochle Club, of Frankford, will be entertained by William Hise Monday evening at his home on Blakiston street. A Dutch supper and music will follow the cards. Members of the club include Benjamin Johnson, William Hise, Arthur Gallagher, John Lawler, Joseph Hughes, James Tawler, Charles Lessert and Bert McKearely.

SATURDAY evening seems to be the favorite time for dinner and theatre parties, or theatre parties and supper, followed by dancing. This evening Miss Rosalie Brown Dolan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Dolan, will entertain in honor of Miss Ruth Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brinton Cox. The guests will be chaperoned by Mrs. Cox, as Mr. and Mrs. Dolan are in mourning.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cobb Kennedy will entertain a number of the debutantes at the theatre, to be followed by supper at the Bellevue-Stratford, in honor of Miss Mary Hall Laird, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Powers Laird. The guests will be Miss Rebecca A. Lyckett, Miss Isabel Milne Rodgers, Miss Elinor Judd Bean, Clarence Freeman, David Burpee, Coleman Sellers, 2d, and John D. Myers.

A delightful rabbit party will be given by John Wagner, Jr., of Four Oaks, School lane, Germantown, in honor of Miss Elizabeth R. Reath, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Reath. The chaperons will be Mrs. Reath and Miss Sarah Wood Wagner, the latter a sister of the host. Those who will be present will be Miss Charlotte Harding Brown, Miss Virginia Roberts, Miss Emille P. Kennedy, Miss Josephine Klöninger, Miss Alice C. Thompson, Miss Margaret Berwind, Miss Cordelia Biddle, Miss Pauline Diston, Albert E. Kennedy, Jr., William H. Du Barry, Rodney N. Landrath, Harry R. Nelson, John C. Bell, Jr., Thomas K. Finletter, Jr., Alexander Mercer Riddle, Jr., Joseph G. E. Malten, John H. Shober, 2d, Barclay McFadden, Lewis Smith and Andrew Van Velt.

Keewaydin, the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Walter Clark in St. Martin's, will be the scene of a dinner-dance this evening. The lower floor will be cleared for the dancers, and will be wonderfully decorated with autumn foliage and flowers. About 70 guests are expected.
